FUTURE STAGES FESTIVAL TO SHOWCASE 600 YOUTH PERFORMING ARTISTS
AT THE KAUFFMAN CENTER FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS

 Free Community Event Celebrates Diversity in the Arts at the Kauffman Center, Connecting Young People to the Arts, the Festival Creates Opportunities for Youth to Perform on Stages From 11am-4pm on June 28th. ***

Kansas City, MO –The second summer of Future Stages Festival at the Kauffman Center is promising to be bigger and more interactive than the inaugural event last June. The free festival will be held at the Kauffman Center on Sunday, June 28, 2015 from 11am – 4pm. All are invited to experience a diverse range of performance and interactive arts activities that will provide fun for the whole family.

The festival will feature 29 community performing groups from the greater Kansas City region who will perform throughout the day in Muriel Kauffman Theatre, Helzberg Hall and on an Outdoor Stage.

"We are pleased to offer this free event as the Kauffman Center is committed to providing opportunities for youth performance artists and provide family-friendly programming. Supporting the growth of future artists, the festival allows us to give back to our community by showcasing many talented young artists from across the region. I'm personally excited to see more than 600 young performers have the opportunity to be showcased on our stages," stated Paul Schofer, President & CEO of the Kauffman Center for the Performing Arts.

Greater Kansas City and the surrounding region has thousands of talented youth artists. Each has a dream to perform in a world-renowned venue and be recognized by professionals and peers. Future Stages Festival provides youth from all disciplines and styles of performance art the opportunity to perform and be recognized.

Future Stages Festival is part of Open Doors Spotlight on Youth, an access program designed to share the Kauffman Center's stages with a wide range of local artists and performers, from young people to smaller arts groups, many of whom have not yet had the opportunity to perform at the Kauffman Center.

More than 600 artists from the Greater Kansas City community are expected to perform on Kauffman Center stages as part of Future Stages Festival. These artists represent 29 performing arts organizations that were selected to perform after a community request for performance group nominations resulted in more than 160 submissions. In addition, the Kauffman Center's resident companies, the Kansas City Ballet, Lyric Opera of Kansas City and Kansas City Symphony will take part in the event. Families and young people attending the event are invited to participate in interactive arts activities throughout the day.

Future Stages Festival is open to the public and attendees are encouraged to register for free at kauffmancenter.org/futurestages or by phone at (816) 994-7222 to receive the latest event updates and schedule for performances and activities. Registration is optional. No tickets will be issued. Once registered, attendees will automatically qualify for a drawing to win two tickets to an upcoming performance at the Kauffman Center. All ages are welcome and programming is suggested as most suitable for families with youth ages 4 - 15.

- The Open Doors Community Ticket Fund offers access to programming at the Kauffman Center for youth and families through reduced price or free tickets.
